

Announcement Regarding the Change in Disclosure of Margin Accounts

TOKYO, June 9, 2008 – Monex Beans Holdings, Inc. ("MBH") announces that Monex, Inc. ("Monex") has decided to change its policy to close dormant margin accounts, which will be also reflected in the weekly and monthly disclosure of accounts by MBH.

It was Monex's standard policy to automatically close margin accounts that have remained dormant over a certain period of time ("dormant margin accounts") and require customers to re-open their margin accounts when starting again. This policy has been changed since June 4, 2008 and Monex will not close dormant margin accounts unless there is a request from the customer. Please note that there will be re-examination of margin account information upon the request of reactivation of the margin account by the customer.
